

Reject NAM petition 04-160.
XM radio is a valuable source for information in areas where other radio sources (FM or AM) is very limited or non-existent.

These problems are part of the natural evolution of the broadcasting industry. Satellite radio provides competition for current systems. Note the precedent with satellite television. Many local channels are now available on satellite television.